LOCAL BUSINESS INDEX SHOWS GAIN OVER 1957

(Special to the Miner and News)

NEW YORK, June 26 — Prosperity is again on the march in Kenora, with families earning more and spending more than those in most sections of Canada.

The resiliency of the local economy, after a year of strong recession, is to be seen in the final figures for 1958, now in.

The upward climb in the last quarter of the year brought the retail sales volume for 1958 up to $15,896,000, actually passing the previous year's $15,355,000.

The date is revealed in Sales Management's new, copyrighted Survey of Buying Power, covering every part of Canada and the United States.

It shows that the volume of business done by the local stores was more than should have been expected for a community of its size.

On the basis of population, local retail activity should have been only .0635 percent of Canada's. Instead, it amounted to .1053 percent.

The credit for the recovery is given to consumer confidence and optimism, bolstered by continued good earnings.

The survey shows that Kenora families had a net income in the year, after deduction of personal taxes, of $19,241,000, compared with $17,926,000 in 1957.

Per household, it was equivalent to $6,635, an average obtained by dividing total income by number of households.

This was more than was earned on the average in the Dominion as a whole, $5,313 per household. It was $6,049 in the Province of Ontario.

Business was much better in some parts of the country than in others. This is brought out in the survey through an "index of quality," which takes into account such factors as population, income and retail sales.

For Kenora, the index rating is 137, or 37 percent above the national average.

All signs point to the fact that the way back from recession is in full swing. Gains in business, registered in the first quarter of this year, are being surpassed in the present quarter.

It is being fed by a record personal income that makes possible long-delayed big purchases, such as new homes, cars, boats and travel.

Economists are now forecasting that 1959 will top all previous years.

Temperature Drop Sunday Spoils Outdoor Fun

A record low temperature for June 29th, coupled with high winds, combined to spoil the week end for many thousands of residents and visitors alike. The thermometer dipped to a cold 41 degrees, and the wind was gusting to 37 miles per hour Sunday.

Many hundreds of fishermen were turned back yesterday, as waves as high as 6 feet [illegible] across the larger stretches of the Lake of the Woods. Provincial Police report that at least two parties spent the night on an island, returning safely this morning. Others who braved the winds and cold, were happy to reach home after an unpleasant fight with the elements.

The south wind yesterday pushed the water in the Lake to a high for the year of 1058.80 feet, but today's north wind has dropped the water a full six inches. Rainfall was measured Sunday morning as .02 of an inch.

THE PROVINCE OF ONTARIO AND THE ST. LAWRENCE SEAWAY

From June 18 to August 1, Her Majesty Queen Elizabeth II and His Royal Highness The Prince Philip will make an extensive tour of Canada, visiting many of the cities and towns in every province, including centres in the Yukon and Northwest Territories. One of the most important functions was the official opening of the great St. Lawrence Seaway by Her Majesty and President Eisenhower at the St. Lambert Lock, near Montreal, on June 26.

Throughout Canada the seaway will open wide fields for industrial advancement and development, but this new highway to the sea will be of particular importance to Ontario, the workshop of the nation. With 80% of the world's ocean-going vessels now able to reach them, many harbours on Ontario's 2000 miles of Great Lakes shoreline will become world ports of trade, expanding their traffic and facilities, attracting new industries, benefitting all areas on the Great Lakes. The industrial heart of Canada and one of the world's most productive industrial areas, Ontario is on the threshold of new economic expansion as her products and produce are brought closer to the markets of the world and raw materials from afar are brought closer to Ontario manufacturers.

POWER

From the great dams and powerhouse dominating the mighty river from Iroquois to Cornwall, Ontario will receive 1,250,000 horsepower of electricity. This power will aid industrial expansion, creating more jobs and more markets in this province which already employs 47% of Canada's industrial labour force and absorbs half of Canada's total investment in manufacturing.

PARKS

Beautiful parkways and scenic drives are being created from the Bay of Quinte to the Ontario-Quebec border. Historical "Upper Canada Pioneer Village" will preserve Canadiana; Crysler Memorial Park and its museum will commemorate a famous battle of the War of 1812; lovely drives will connect islands and the mainland; there will be boating, swimming, picnicking and camping facilities. All this will add to the attraction of Ontario, Canada's 'Variety Vacationland,' now visited by 60% of all tourists entering Canada.

TRAFFIC DOUBLE?

It is estimated that 25-million tons of cargo a year will pass through the Seaway, double the earlier traffic. Subsequent increases in traffic are expected to bring the total to 50-million tons a year in 10 years.

The Welland Canal is expected to increase from 23-million to 40-million tons a year with a maximum of 6[illegible] million tons reached after 10 years.

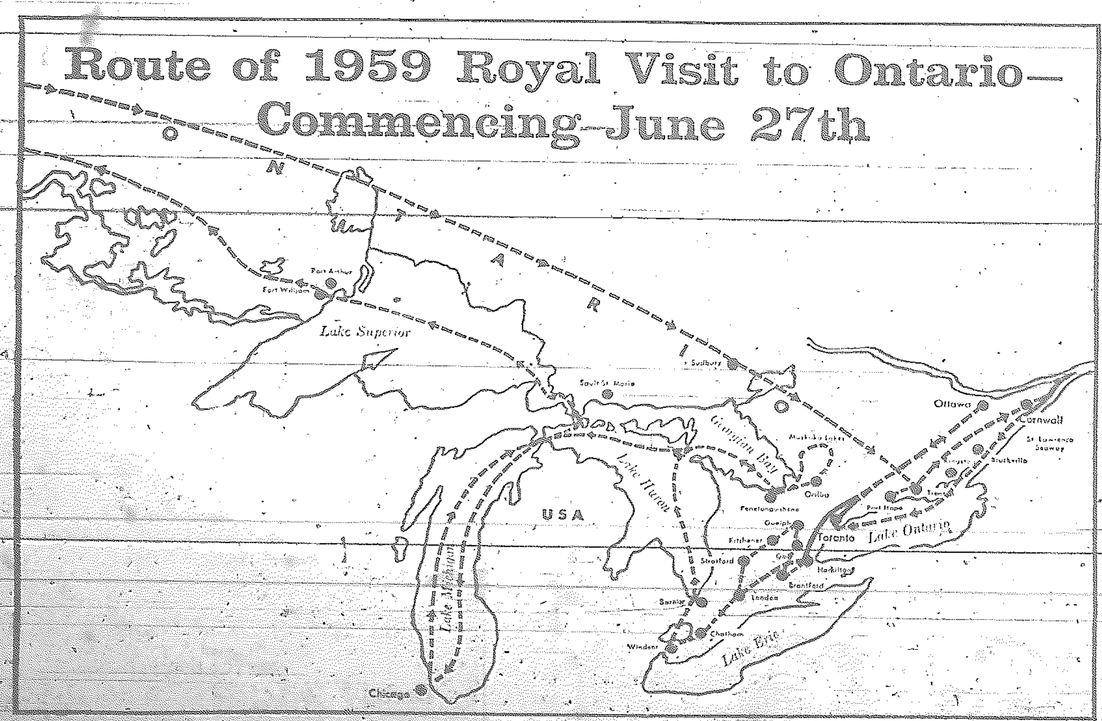
ST. LAWRENCE SEAWAY



The Government and the people of Ontario welcome Her Majesty Queen Elizabeth II, and His Royal Highness the Prince Philip, to our great Province.

With the official opening of The St. Lawrence Seaway by Her Gracious Majesty, the worthy dream of years becomes a reality. Now open to deep-water shipping of the world, our Lake Ports will provide access to the heartland of the Continent—and from them, as ocean ports, will go forward, into world trade channels, Canada's and Ontario's raw materials and manufactured goods.

Out of this Development has also come the great Provincial power project—in which Ontario has made a vast financial investment—providing additional power resources which can be used to increase our industrial, agricultural and economic strength.

Proud to be a partner in the British Commonwealth of Nations, our Canadian Nation rejoices in and looks forward to the Royal visit. It will be marked by many memorable events. They will be of great historic significance, providing opportunity as well to show to the Queen of Canada the unfailing loyalty, devotion and affection of her Canadian people.

May the visit to Ontario of our Gracious Sovereign be a pleasant one, as we pay her due homage.

THE GOVERNMENT OF THE PROVINCE OF ONTARIO

Canada Welcomes Her Majesty

Queen and Prince Complete First Ten Days of Royal Tour

The Province of Ontario welcomed the Royal visitors on Friday. H. M. Queen Elizabeth and H. R. H. Prince Philip will visit many cities and towns in the province, coming as far west as the Lakehead on July 9th.

It is interesting to note that after the first 10 days, 6,000 miles & 5,000 handshakes of the Royal Tour, evidence is piling up that the monarchy is still popular with most Canadians.

There is evidence, too, that relations between Queen Elizabeth and the people seem on a firmer, friendlier and human basis. A more intimate glimpse of royalty shows that in martial matters at least, Prince Philip is the boss.

Veterans of other tours have also concluded that the Queen is still as seriously dedicated to her role as ever but she has greater confidence and is more at ease in public. Her confidence increases and brings out a wide and beautiful smile as the crowds shout her a welcome in English or French. There is little sign of the nervous shyness that was evident on her first tour — in 1951. This time, and without appearing to lose royal dignity, she is more ready to smile back, or to "give" in the language of the stage.

MINOR TRANSFORMATION

And one step behind her in protocol but often a jump ahead in stage-managing an entrance or spotting warmth that needs recognition, Prince Philip has also undergone a minor transformation that makes his acceptance more natural and easy for Canadians. When enthusiastic mobs stopped the royal motorcade in downtown Montreal Thursday, he leaned from his perch on the top of the back seat and laughingly shook hands and exchanged greetings with the crowd while the Queen happily smiled in obvious amusement.

On previous occasions he might have given terse instructions to the police escort to open the path wider and she might have shyly withdrawn into the regal reserve and perhaps cooled the ardor of the demonstrators.

This change was first noticeable at the beginning of the tour in tiny spots in Newfoundland such as Deer Lake. Here the Queen and little groups of spectators were left in what could have been uneasy proximity. Here, too, the villagers had never seen royalty and they first treated its appearance almost reverently. But the royal tourists were easy and informal and the warm response on both sides had an air of friendly understanding that seems in keeping with the times and the custom of this continent.

MONTREAL IMPRESSED

Even in Canada's biggest city, which has seen just about everything there is to see, the royal couple obviously made a deep impression. People dropped their impersonal and blase approach and shouted a good-natured welcome along the royal route.

As for any suggestion French-Canada might be less enthusiastic than its English counterpart, there has been no warmer greeting than the "Vive la Reine" shouted through Quebec province. The old formal acceptance of monarchy as an integral part of Canada's constitutional structure seems definitely to have been succeeded by a readiness to accept the Queen and her family in a more personal and homey way.

Perhaps the Queen set the right note herself. First she made sure the royal yacht Britannia displayed prominently the Canadian Ensign — a flag certainly more acceptable to Quebec than the Union Jack.

Then she moved close and with reverence and respect to the Roman Catholic service of blessing the colors, just before she presented them Tuesday to Canada's crack French regiment — the Royal 22nd — at Quebec. She heard the commander tell her emotionally in his French tongue of the regiment's steadfast loyalty to the Crown. But leaving no doubt it was "Canadian" loyalty, the whole regiment, in an unscheduled move, sang O Canada to accompaniment of massed bands.

OBVIOUS AFFECTION

Premier Duplessis talked to the young Queen with obvious affection and gave her one of the most enjoyable dinner conversations she's had so far. And on his feet, he spoke of the "authority and liberty" of French-speaking Canadians under the crown.

His home town of Trois-Rivieres saw practically everybody in the neat industrial city interrupt preparations for the important St. Jean Baptiste Day to turn out and cheer the Queen wherever she went. Their warm-hearted greeting obviously affected her.

At Quebec the mayor, who has nine children and 13 grandchildren, talked to her on a subject close to the Quebec heart — raising families. Then with almost fatherly affection he tucked her into the back seat of her car for a roaring ovation through the old streets of the town. It prompted her to rise to her feet in acknowledgement, something else shyly avoided the last time.

So there seems a closer meeting of opposites this time. For even in Quebec its doubtful if there would be too much national disagreement on the tourdve statement from Premier Smallwood of more royalist Newfoundland. He criticized carping skeptics and would-be republicans.

As he put it, "the Queen's Commonwealth represents more sanity, more maturity and more dependable predictibility than anywhere else in this troubled world. And the Queen is the visible symbol of these badly-needed qualities." The Queen was also the symbol of respect for authority and an anchorage for national pride.

This tour, in many ways, has brought the public closer to the Royal Family because of the more informal press arrangements, which sees reporters and photographers get within earshot of what is going on. The arrangement apparently has the blessing of the royal tourists for at a free and easy press reception the Queen said she had no objection to critical articles because that was the right of a writer in a democracy.

The prince, exchanging banter with photographers on the most friendly basis of their long association, told them he had no objection to anything but the "keyhole" type of operation which tried to invade the privacy of the Royal Family.

SHOW HUMAN SIDE

But this new deal, with the Mounties acting as conducting officers rather than roadblocks, has brought reporters in range of husband-and-wife conversation that also show the very human side of the Royal Family life and increases appreciation for the pair and the way they do their tough job.

The prince is obviously a confident support for the Queen. He can keep a difficult conversation going, put anybody at ease and sometimes make up the Queen's mind when it's time to move on.

His ready, husbandly advice is often heard and he seemed to take a prideful delight as tourist guide when they visited some of the northern developments where he had already been. The workmen in the iron ore pits of Labrador, in the pulp mill in Newfoundland and in the fiery aluminum smelter in Quebec, all appreciated the Queen's intelligent questions and obvious keen interest in the replies. There was nothing perfunctory about the way she operated.

The Queen obviously has a motherly sentiment about her children that she doesn't always hide too well. When they are mentioned affectionately by either grownups or children in the presentation line, her emotions show, though for only a brief moment.

Both the Queen and the prince are ardent tourists and she remembers everything she has seen — historic pageantry in St. John's Nfld., and the broad sweep of western Newfoundland, a naval review in the Gulf of St. Lawrence and the spectacular scenery of Gaspe and the dramatic cliffs of the Saguenay.

She has her own pictures of most of the highlights and enjoys discussing the tour's beauty and history with anyone interested.

The prince takes a practical look at the tour and when asked the other day he said he would have liked to fish in Newfoundland and northern Quebec but "you just can't mix business (the Royal Tour) with pleasure."

The prince has been his usual active self, taking a hand in practical operations, this time bringing the royal yacht to a perfect docking at Port Alfred where waters are deep and tricky and then spoiling his record by nudging it sharply against the pilings at Trois-Rivieres and scratching the highly-polished enamel finish.

There has been some concern about the rugged royal schedule and its similarity, in spite of early protests to the contrary, to the colourless and exhausting reception lines of the past. But it is obvious that the program gives the royal pair a mobile, but roomy and comfortable, private home in the Britannia and this is the answer for the long Canadian tour. When the Queen disembarks along the way each day, she seems more relaxed and refreshed than on other occasions when other means of transportation were used.

THE ROYAL VISIT

There have been many royal tours since the year 1787 when Prince William Henry, later William IV (Queen Elizabeth's great-great-great-grandunkle) came to Canada. But this visit of Queen Elizabeth in 1959 is the greatest of them all.

The Queen is the only reigning monarch to tour Canada since the visit of her parents 20 years ago. Outstanding as that tour was, the present tour will go far beyond it in scope and character.

For one thing, it has uniquely international features. The King and Queen in 1939 made a visit to President Roosevelt. But today President Eisenhower comes to Canada, to take part in a ceremony to mark the completion of a great international effort. Never in all history have a monarch and a president been together on the soil of Canada.

Nor is this the only international feature of the tour. The Queen and Prince Philip will stop at such American border points as Sault Ste. Marie and Port Huron in Michigan, and they will sail in the royal yacht Britannia into the harbor of Chicago.

No royal tour in Canada has covered as long a distance — a distance of 11,200 miles. The Queen and Prince Philip will go up into the Yukon and will visit all ten of Canada's provinces (there were only nine provinces in 1939).

Nor has any royal tour used so many different means of transportation. In 1939 the King and Queen moved from point to point almost entirely by train. But Queen Elizabeth and Prince Philip will travel not only by train, but will use the royal yacht, planes and automobiles.

This tour is unique not only when compared with those made by other members of the royal family; it is unique for Queen Elizabeth, too. Though this will be her third visit to Canada, it is her first tour as Queen.

Her first visit, in 1951, was as Princess Elizabeth. And although she came as Queen in 1957, it was a limited visit, with the special purpose of herself opening the session of her Parliament of Canada.

Prime Minister Diefenbaker called that autumn day in 1957 "the Queen's Day." But on this longer visit of 1959 every day in the weeks ahead will be "a Queen's Day."

Coca Cola remained in first place in the Little Canadian Baseball League when they came from behind to down Dingwall's 5-3. Don Brown had crossed the plate with a first inning run, and Dennis Misurka and Larry Hardy made it 3-0 in the fourth. Dennis Portman started the fifth with a single for Cokes and later scored their first run. Three sixth inning walks and a pair of errors resulted in four runs for Coca Cola and the game. Les Brown allowed but two hits in gaining the victory. Misurka gave up three hits and fanned fourteen in losing.

Coca Cola	0 0 0 0 1 4 -	5	3
Dingwall's	1 0 0 2 0 0 -	3	2

Play continues Monday as the Lumber Kings visit Lakeland on diamond "A." The Lumber Kings won a close 4-3 decision last time but Lakeland has looked much better since then. The up and coming Lions who are the only team to beat league leading Coca Cola host Dingwall's on diamond "B." The league has found it a hard job to locate umpires thus far. Baseball is a game that cannot do without umpires. They are as necessary as a ball and bat. Now if this programme for boys is worthwhile, it certainly merits the co-operation of anyone with some spare time and who feels he can do a little umpiring now and then to help out. Up to now Mrs. Barber and Mrs. Salmon have spent hours trying to find umpires and it is not right that they should spend so much of their time doing this. They have as much work to do as anyone else. If anyone wishes to help in this way, will you please contact either of these two ladies.

More Power, Better Features, Bigger Production
Here it is: the Cat D7 Tractor — Series D. Here's the tractor that will push and pull bigger loads, operate more efficiently and give better service. Now, more than ever before, the D7 is the best investment in its power class!
Key to its superior performance is a 140 HP Turbocharged Cat Diesel Engine, designed specifically for heavy-duty D7 crawler work. It adds more horsepower with more efficient use of fuel. Lugging ability is increased 80% over the Series C. Other D7 developments include a dry-type air cleaner that removes at least 99.8% of all airborne dirt from engine intake air — pressure lubricated transmission — stronger final drive gears — lifetime lubricated rollers and idlers that need no lubrication until rebuilding.

Poor Dad forgot to look behind

. . . safe driving rules
slipped from his mind!
He'd planned all year to make this trip
A happy one, without a slip.
Now kids were counted in the back,
Suitcases stowed on the rack.
He'd checked the car, he had his dough.
"All set," he hollered. "Off we go!"
Down the drive, the car was backed—
Into a passing truck it smacked.
. . . The trip was ended on the spot
Safe driving habits Dad forgot!

Now! An additional Scotia Plan Service!

SCOTIA PLAN CHEQUE-CREDIT

The Bank of Nova Scotia's new system of "revolving" credit

Last year the BNS introduced SCOTIA PLAN LOANS. The response was so enthusiastic, the BNS now offers a second kind of Scotia Plan credit — also life-insured at no extra cost to you.

How Scotia Plan Cheque-Credit Works

1. Select a monthly payment that you can afford. You then apply for twelve times that amount.
2. When your application has been approved you receive a book of special cheques.
3. Use these cheques whenever you need funds—good anytime, anywhere in Canada.
4. Each month the BNS sends you a statement of cheques written, payments to be made, and the amount of credit still open.
5. Your monthly payment is one-twelfth of the amount of credit you have used, so far.
6. As you make a payment, the amount of the payment becomes available again for your use.

EXAMPLE:
Assume you are eligible for Cheque-Credit up to $600. You write a cheque for $100. Your monthly statement from the BNS will indicate one cheque used for $100, a payment due of $8.33 (1/12 of $100), a charge on the $100 of 50¢ per month, and credit remaining of $500.

Find out all about Scotia Plan Cheque-Credit at your nearest branch of the BNS, soon. Ask at the Scotia Plan Department.

Letter to the Editor

Dear Sir,

Had a visit from a man who resided here in Kenora 1910 by the name of Harry Boles. I worked with him at the Maple Leaf Flour Mill about a year, then he decided to go west and try farming which he did and this is his first trip back to Kenora since that time, almost 50 years. So he got a phone book to look over the names, to see if he knew anyone, and spotted my name, and came around to my house. He was very impressed with the changes in Kenora, not a car or truck in those days now look at them, also no flour mill, no saw mill, or box factory, but the paper mill was wonderful, built on the old site where the circus used to put up their big tent, the new development out at Pinecrest, around Rabbit Lake, where we used to go through the bush to get to it for a swim.

We talked about the old times and of the old faces, some of which have long passed on, others have left the town. Then there was going on the ferry boat to Coney Island for a swim, not many boats then, unless you wanted to row. One young fellow in particular, used to like to beat the fare when the collector was going around one side he would watch him, then sneak up behind and sit down as the collector was coming around the other side, he thought he was smart saving a dime. No he wasn't a Scotchman, he was English, I'm sorry to say. Old faces certainly bring back memories.

Frank Stokes.

Five first offence drunks were each given the option of $10 and costs or seven days.

For consuming liquor while under the age of 21, a Kenora youth paid $16 and costs.

Illegal possession of liquor cost a local man $31 and costs.

Three women charged with causing a disturbance by fighting were each sentenced to fifteen days and a second offence drunk, 30 days.

A man charged with causing a disturbance by fighting ing a disturbance was given 10 days.

A Jaffray Melick motorist paid $16 for speeding on the highway.
