

PERJURY TRIAL FOR A RED LAKE MAN ORDERED

"It isn't for this Court to say if the accused is guilty or not guilty of this offence; the Court's function is to see if there is sufficient evidence to commit the accused for trial. Exhibit No. 1 and other evidence taken here today shows there is sufficient evidence," said Magistrate J. V. Fregeau in committing for trial at the next court of competent jurisdiction, Jacques Champagne of Red Lake on a perjury charge. The charge resulted from evidence given by the accused at an inquest held on January 7th at Red Lake inquiring into the death of Margaret Pisk. The body of the deceased was in the snow near Red Lake on Dec. 14th.

Ontario Provincial Police Constable Firth was the first witness and testified briefly concerning the events on Dec. 13th.

Annie Duck followed, and told the Court that she lived near a sawmill at Red Lake. She and the deceased, Margaret Pisk, lived together, and went to downtown Red Lake Dec. 13th, about 4:00 p.m. They had met the accused briefly. Witness said they proceeded to Champagne's residence where considerable wine was consumed, and that the accused was at home when four men arrived in the early evening. Witness said she left, without Margaret, about 9:00 p.m.

Ed Anderson of Red Lake was the third witness. He was one of four men who arrived at the Champagne residence by truck from downtown Red Lake about 7:00 p.m. He told the court that Annie Duck and Margaret Pisk were present when he arrived. All were intoxicated but knew what they were saying, said Mr. Anderson. Considerable wine was consumed before he left about 8:00 p.m. concluded Mr. Anderson.

Cross examined by Mr. Jack Doner, acting for the defence.

Art Display May Be Seen At The Public Library

The Kenora Art Club have enjoyed some very interesting films this winter on the work of artists of different types. Their next meeting will be held on Thursday, February 26 at 8:15 p.m. in the library where a film on the work of Grandma Moses will be viewed. The election of officers will also take place.

The club has arranged for the travelling exhibit of the Fort Frances Art Club which is now on view at the Public Library.

The display will continue until Thursday of this week. These oil paintings are of different subjects and are all very interesting. The Art Club are planning a tea in the spring at which paintings of members will be shown and also work from other clubs.

witness said Margaret was 'fairly' drunk, and that one man was asleep on the floor. Witness said he had been in a beer parlour all that afternoon. No others came or went while he was present at the Champagne residence, he added.

Thomas Kepper was the final witness. He left a beverage room shortly before the supper closing hour Dec. 13th and had called briefly at the Champagne residence. He saw four men and two women in the one room house. He told the women to go home, that the weather was very cold.

Mr. Doner moved that sufficient evidence to warrant a commitment on a perjury charge had not been offered. The full definition of perjury had not been proven, including intent and knowledge of falsity, claimed the Defence Counsel.

Mr. O'Flaherty, conducting the case for the Crown, suggested that the evidence at the inquest and the evidence presented at the hearing, indicated a commitment.

Extensive Work Program Planned For District

Mr. Howard Keffer, Provincial Progressive Conservative candidate, accompanied by Mr. Bill Johnson of Kenora spent last week in Toronto. While there they met with the cabinet and discussed business pertaining to this riding.

The program of work includes an extensive road program, a new wing for the district jail which is already started and a new boathouse at the back of the Court House.

A detailed account of the work planned will be released at an early date.

Petition Required For Vote On Liquor Referendum

The Kenora town council, last night voted unanimously that it should not initiate the holding of a vote concerning a Chamber of Commerce proposal regarding licensing of further liquor outlets including cocktail lounges, without the presentation of a petition signed by 25 percent of those whose names appeared on the last provincial voters' list.

Prior to this, a motion requesting that the Liquor Licensing Board of Ontario fix a date for the conducting of a vote (20 petition required) was voted down by a four to two majority.

A communication, from Rev. R. J. Leighton clarifying the intent of the respective church groups in presenting petitions to council concerning the above matter was referred to council of adding to or increasing the

TOWN WORK PROJECTS EMPLOY MANY MEN

The Miner and News has learned that the Public Works Committee of the town, in conjunction with town engineer J. A. McCoombs, have taken full advantage of the Winter Works Program, subsidized by the government to help alleviate unemployment. An extensive program has been formulated and work is being done all over town. All employable welfare recipients (married men) are now working on these various projects and the welfare costs to the town have been considerably reduced.

The following projects are being carried out:
Nairn Avenue (new sub-division). Right of way cutting started.
Lakeside Park and Beach filling underway. Project to be completed by March 3rd, 1959.
Waterworks Tunnel underpass at 16th Ave. N. underway. Difficulty experienced with water seepage and rock.

Tenth Street South - Right of way completed so far as money available would allow.

The "Deep Well" a film from the Children's Aid Society was shown and proved self explanatory of the service provided by this organization.

Miss Parry of the local office of the Children's Aid Society summarized particular points in the film proving that the work of the Society included much more than only the placement of children. The services to broken families is a needy one especially in the case of disturbed children where only professional help is the answer to many problems, the most important goal being to bring the family together. Mr. Batchelor thanked Miss Parry for her helpful remarks and the use of the film. The meeting closed with a prayer and the singing of God Save the Queen. In the 12 months up to December 1935, Canada's consumer price index rose by 2 1/4%.

LET'S TALK CARS

Are Your Speed Laws Sensible?

Everybody has heard that old saying that the safest way to drive is to imagine that everyone else on the road is a half-witted moron.

It's a good enough rule, but I suspect that when highway traffic laws are prepared, the lawmakers have the same thought in mind.

Take speed limits for instance. Speed limits reveal in two ways that no one really trusts the man behind the wheel.

First of all, there's the matter of over-all speed limits, the same limit applying to almost every highway. Every motorist has had the feeling that it would be perfectly safe to go 60 on a clear, dry four-lane highway where the limit is 50, but he would be scared silly to go 50 on a crooked, bumpy road where the law says the safe speed is also 50.

No one defends the crazy, irresponsible speeder, but we tend to think that giving any latitude in speed limits would send us all throbbing madly to our deaths. That's the second point, that drivers are going to set the speed limits themselves anyway, and laws should take some recognition of it.

There's a section of the Pennsylvania Turnpike that was engineered to be safe at 90 - - and the speed limit is 70 miles an hour. A 13-year study showed recently that the average speed in this 70-mile an hour zone was only 59 miles an hour - - people just didn't want to travel that fast.

There were a few maniacs, sure. But it was also shown that cars going over the speed limit of 70 were involved in only 2 percent of the accidents on that road. Drivers aren't such bad people after all.

Royalites moved into a favorable position in Section one and will be tough to beat out for the playoff spot. However Kenwood Hotel and Ticker Dots both retain a fairly good chance of beating the Bankers out. Newmans Jewellery and Lakeland Dairies are still leading the parade with both teams striving to win for the second time.

Leftovers moved ahead in Section two getting 21 points to move five up on Westario Motors who led last week. Tilley's Drugs had a bad night and trail by ten points, they have an outside chance of making it but I wouldn't want to bet on it.

Supermarket have Section 3 all wrapped up with a good substantial lead; they would have to stay away and Olfmans or Imps get twenty-four points to make any change.

Krons Transportation must have ideas about winning three straight sections, last week they moved up to within 2½ points of the leaders Dalmore Hotel. The Hotel bowlers should win the playoff spot though unless Lands & Forests make a strong finish. Dalmore have a 5 point edge at present.

Section five has the closest battle with three teams up there with only three points separating them. Acme Cleaners have a ½ point lead over Off Centres with Head Pins just two points back of that. Off Centres have already won a playoff spot but would like to win two Sections.

HERE & THERE

Helen Atamaniuk bowled her first 200 score last week, in fact she bowled two of them 213, and 200 with a 571 triple. Stan Crook had a good night with a 702 triple if Stan had got started in his first game he would have broken 800. Georgie Calder started in high gear with 283 but sure had trouble after that. Helen and Pete Plante had quite a contest with Pete rollin 688 and Helen 686. Phil Netzel sure went all out in his second game and came through with a dandy 340 very very nice Phil. Rose Clifton broke three hundred in her last game with a 603 and 721 for her three game total. Hilda Sands had a 215 effort, Ron Mablesen rolled 279. Gary Beyko was in good form with 226 and 285 with 671 for three. Larry Kariam came through with a 251 single in his last game. John Zilinski had a lovely 345 game to edge out Phil for the high single of the month.

THE BIRTH OF SCOUTING

By LORD BADEN-POWELL

As a matter of fact I didn't actually see the start of the Boy Scout Movement because the blooming thing started itself, unseen.

It started in 1908—but the microbe of Scouting had got me long before that. When I was a boy at Charterhouse I got a lot of fun out of trapping rabbits in woods that were out of bounds. If and when I caught one, which was not often, I skinned him and cooked him and ate him—and lived. In doing this I learned to creep silently, to know my way by landmarks, to note tracks and read their meaning, to use dry dead wood off trees and not off the ground for my fire, to make a tiny non-smoky fire such as would not give me away to prying masters, and if these came along I had my sod ready to extinguish the fire and hide the spot while I shinned up some ivy-clad tree where I could nestle unobserved above the line of sight of the average searcher.

The Germ Idea

Somewhere about 1893 I started teaching Scouting to young soldiers in my regiment. When these young fellows joined the Army they had learned reading, writing and arithmetic in school, but as a rule not much else. They were nice lads and made very good parade soldiers, obeyed orders, kept themselves clean and smart and all that, but they had never been taught to be men, how to look after themselves, how to take responsibility, and so on.

They had not had 'my chances of education outside of the classroom. They had been brought up in the herd at school, they were trained as a herd in the Army; they simply did as they were told and had no ideas of initiative of their own. In action they carried out orders, but if their officer was shot they were as helpless as a flock of sheep. Tell one of them to ride out alone with a message on a dark night, and ten to one he would lose his way.

I wanted to make them feel that they were a match for any enemy, able to find their way by the stars or map, accustomed to notice all tracks and signs and to read their meaning, and able to fend for themselves away from regimental cooks and barracks. I wanted them to have courage, from confidence in themselves and from a sense of duty; I wanted them to have knowledge of how to take care of their own health, and how to cook their own grub; in short I wanted each man to be an efficient, all-round, reliable individual. The scheme worked. The men loved the training, and scouting became very popular in the regiment.

A Little Book, "Aids to Scouting"

In 1899 I wrote a little book called "Aids to Scouting" for soldiers. It taught them observation, or how to track, and it taught them deduction, or how to read the information given by tracks.

As one instance of observation and deduction, I told how my bicycle had been stolen one night in India and how I tracked it down and discovered the thief. In the early dawn I followed the track of the bike along a hard high road, not an easy thing to do if you look down on the road, but looking along the surface towards the sunrise one saw the track quite clearly ahead of one in the dew lying on the ground. The thief had led the bike by hand because the front wheel was locked and he evidently didn't know how to free it. His footmarks alongside it were those of a soldier's boot, not of a native's sandal. I observed that he passed the turning which led to the cavalry barracks, so I deduced that he was not a cavalryman; similarly he passed the road to the infantry barracks, but when he got to the artillery road he turned up it and went into their barracks. So I had only to tell the Adjutant of the Artillery that I believed one of his men had possessed himself of a very nice bike with a locked forewheel, and in a short time my bike was returned to me, having been found hidden under the bed of one of the men. That was just one incident of many in the book to show the value of observation and deduction.

The Boys of Mafeking

When we were besieged in Mafeking, in 1900, my Chief Staff Officer, Lord Edward Cecil, got together the boys in the place and made them into a cadet corps for carrying orders and messages and acting as orderlies and so on, in place of the soldiers, who were thus released to go and strengthen the firing line. We then made the discovery that boys, when trusted and relied on, were just as capable and reliable as men. Also, from experience of the Boys' Brigade, I realized that men could be got voluntarily to sacrifice time and energy to training boys.

Then my idea that scouting could be educative was strengthened also through the following incident. General Lord Allenby was riding to his house after a field day when his little son shouted to him: "Father, I have shot you, you are not half a Scout. A Scout looks upward as well as around him—and you never saw me."

There was the boy, sitting up in a tree overhead; but far above him, near the top of the tree, was his new governess. "What on earth are you doing up there?" cried the General. "Oh, I am teaching him scouting," she said. She had been trained at Miss Charlotte Mason's College for Teachers, and they had been using my book Aids to Scouting, written for soldiers, as a textbook in the art of educating children.

Then in 1907, I, as a General, was inspecting 7,000 of the Boys' Brigade at Glasgow on its twentieth anniversary, and the Founder, Sir William Smith, was very pleased because the total strength of his movement was 54,000. I agreed that it was a big number, but added that if the training really appealed to boys there ought to be ten times that number.

"How would you make it appeal?" he asked.

"Well, look at the young fellows in the Cavalry, how they enjoy this game of Scouting, which makes them into real and good soldiers."

"Could you re-write Aids to Scouting," he wondered, "so that it would appeal to boys instead of to soldiers, and make them into real men and good citizens?"

So I did that.

Brownsea Island

But before writing the book I planned out the idea and then tested it. I got together some twenty boys of all sorts, some from Eton and Harrow, some from the East End of London, some country lads and some shop boys, and I mixed them up like plums in a pudding to live together in camp. I wanted to see how far the idea would interest the different kinds of lads. I told a friend what I was doing, and said that I wanted a quiet place, out of the way of Press reporters and inquisitive people, where I could try the experiment; and she offered me the use of her property—Brownsea Island in Dorsetshire. And there we set up our camp for a fortnight. I had the late Major Maclaren and the present Sir Percy Everett to help me and we taught the boys camping, cooking, observation, deduction, woodcraft, chivalry, boatmanship, life-saving, health, patriotism and such things.

The results upon the boys in that short space of time taught me the possibilities which the Scout training held for boys. So I at once set to work and wrote the handbook "Scouting for Boys" intending it to be used by the existing boys' organizations such as the Boys' Brigade, the Church Lads' Brigade, the Y.M.C.A., and others. The book came out in fortnightly parts at 1d a copy.

Boys Started Their Own Troops

Before many of the parts had been published I began to get letters from boys who had taken up the game for themselves, boys not belonging to the Boys' Brigade or any other association. All the following years boys were writing to me telling me how they had started Patrols and Troops and had got men to come and act as their Scoutmasters. So we had to start a Headquarters office in a tiny room to deal with correspondence and supply equipment. I remember my Secretary wondering whether, if we laid in a stock of twelve Scout hats, we should be able to sell them all!

The First Scout Rally

In that year, 1909, I arranged to have a meeting of the would-be Scouts at the Crystal Palace on a certain day. And when I got there, my wig, there were a lot of them! Rain was threatening, so we mustered them inside the Palace and arranged a March Past and counted them as they entered at one door and went out at the other. There were 11,000 of them—11,000, who had taken it up of their own accord!

That is why I say that one didn't see the start: Scouting had started itself.

Then, among the boys as they marched past, we found some groups of girls in Scout hats with staves and lanyards and haversacks, like the boys.

The Girl Guides Came

"Who are you?" we said.

"Oh, we are the Girl Scouts."

"The devil you are."

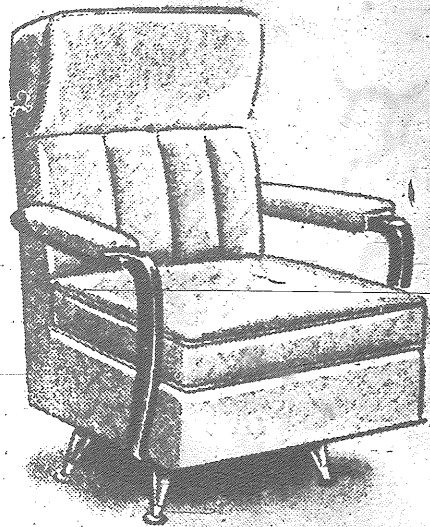

"No—Girl Scouts."

So I had eventually to write a book for them giving them the name of Guides to distinguish them from Scouts. And that is how the Girl Guides started—on their own—and they have gone on growing ever since.

Around the World

Soon we began to hear from the Overseas Dominions and Colonies that they were all taking up Scouting, and before long foreign countries too were translating "Scouting for Boys" and playing the game. In 1910 I had to go on a tour through America explaining the Movement in twenty-four States. And I went on to Canada, Australia and South Africa, preaching Scouting where they had all started it.

"SERVING WITH A PURPOSE"

FARM SAFETY CONFERENCE ENDORSES FARM SAFETY PROGRAM

A forward step in farm accident prevention was realized this week when more than 300 persons, representing 55 Ontario counties and districts, endorsed a proposed farm safety program which was the basis of a two-day Farm Safety Conference held at the Ontario Agricultural College, Guelph, under the joint sponsorship of the Ontario Department of Agriculture and the Ontario Department of Transport.

Safety authorities, from the Ontario Government and the United States, outlined the nature of the accident picture in agriculture, and on our highways, and revealed the measures that have so far been taken to curb the accident toll.

Speaking for the Ontario Department of Agriculture, the Hon. W. A. Goodfellow, Minister of Agriculture for Ontario, stated that "it is a recognized fact that machinery, live stock, fires, falls and highway accidents all contribute to make farming a very hazardous occupation. It follows that it is our duty to undertake a program of safety education that will assist in preventing needless loss of life and injury that is all too common today."

Dr. J. D. MacLachlan, President of the Ontario Agricultural College, pointed out that it was useless to strive for increased productivity, better husbandry, and more efficiency in farming if the price that had to be paid was injury and accidents to the farm people concerned. Prof. C. G. Downing, head of the Department of Engineering Science at the O.A.C., disclosed that the idea of promoting safety was not new with the Department of Agriculture; for years the Department, through its agricultural representatives and through organized programs with 4-H clubs, homemakers, junior farmers, and rural people generally, had been engaged in a safety program.

"But we have to go even further," states T. R. Hilliard, Director of Extension, Ontario Department of Agriculture, under whose supervision the Farm Accident Survey will begin on March 1. "Just as improved farming practices are the result of scientific research applied to actual farming conditions, so can a sound farm safety program result only from research on actual farm accidents. Once the research is completed, farm safety programs can then be devised which are based on actual farming conditions."

The Extension Director disclosed that the survey will record all farm accidents over the one-year period March, 1, 1959 to February 29, 1960. Although the accident survey will be province-wide in scope, he stressed that a prime objective of the survey would be to provide a county and district farm accident picture, so that a specific safety program could be undertaken for each area.

He revealed that the survey will be conducted mainly by farm people with the co-operation of the Ontario Department of Agriculture branch offices. He estimated that approximately 7000 rural persons had offered to serve as accident reporters. He emphasized that reports would be confidential, in that no names of persons or location of farms would be revealed, but that this confidential information would be used to prepare a safety education program. The statistics obtained from the survey will be available to any organization interested in a safety program. Mr. Hilliard solicited the co-operation of rural people in carrying out the survey so that an effective farm safety program may be devised for Ontario farm people.

The delegates to the conference supported the Department's Farm Accident Survey. Mr. Gordon Greer, President of the Ontario Federation of Agriculture; Miss Kathleen Homan, President of the Junior Farmers of Ontario; and Mrs. James Haggerty, President of the Federated Women's Institutes of Ontario all pledged the support of the accident survey by their respective organizations.

Reporting for Kenora-Keewatin rural area will be:

Mrs. Fanny Robinson, R.R. 1, Keewatin, Ontario; Mr. Harold Jackson, c/o Vacationland Co-op Dairy, Kenora, Ont.; Mr. John Heidinga, General Delivery, Kenora, Ontario; Mr. Bert Alcock, R.R. 1, Kenora, Ontario; Mr. Alf Samson, R.R. 1, Kenora, Ontario; Mr. Gus Johnson, R.R. 1, Kenora, Ontario; Mr. John Strecker, R.R. 1, Kenora, Ontario.

Premier Opens Largest Hotel in Commonwealth

Toronto—Today you are witnessing not only the re-opening of the greatest Hotel in the British Commonwealth but the finest in the world. Ontario Premier Leslie M. Frost told guests at formal opening ceremonies of a new $10-million addition to the Royal York Hotel in Toronto Saturday.

The 400-room addition, 17 stories high, boosts the capacity of the Royal York to 1,600 rooms, giving it the "Greatest in the British Commonwealth" Title. Convention facilities added by the new extension makes the Royal York one of North America's most versatile convention Hotels. The new addition also unveils a permanent tribute to the history and traditions of Canada in the form of a distinctive Canadian Interior decorative scheme. The new section of the Royal York was officially opened by Premier Frost in a ribbon-cutting ceremony attended by the Lieutenant-Governor of Ontario, Hon. J. Keiller Mackay, W. A. Mather, chairman of the Canadian Pacific Railway and N. R. Crump, C.P.R. president, government officials and civic dignitaries.

N. R. Crump, president of the Canadian Pacific Railway, in replying to a toast to the Royal York, told guests "the Royal York is but one more indication of our belief in Canada. Our country's march to full Nationhood has been a stirring and colorful story, and a story, if I may say so, that is capable of being more fully appreciated by both Canadians and our friends in other countries, some of whom we are privileged to have with us today."

"That is one reason why, in this new addition, we have paid tribute through a distinctive Canadian decorative theme to our country—past, present and future—its hopes and aspirations."

Other speakers during the ceremonies were G. H. Sheppard, president of the Toronto Board of Trade, who proposed a toast to the hotel, Nathan Phillips, Mayor of Toronto, and Frederick G. Gardiner, chairman of the Metropolitan Toronto Council.
