Sports Briefs

A veteran of Canada's National Hockey team, Fran Huk, has resigned from the team. The 24 year old center from Winnipeg said yesterday that he cannot see any incentive for continuing on an exhibition basis against senior teams. Huck was one of the National team members whose future was threatened when Canada pulled out of the 1970 World Hockey Championships.

The General Manager of the New York Mets, Johnny Murphy, died last night of a heart attack in a New York Hospital. Murphy who was 61, climaxed a long baseball career when the Mets brilliantly won the 1969 world series. He was a former star relief pitcher for the Yankees.

France has taken the first four places in the 2200 meter women's downhill Silver Jug Ski Race in Badgastein, Austria. Victory went to Isabelle Mir in the unofficial time of one minute, 45 and 78 hundredths seconds. The events are being held today.

The prize money for this year's Wimbledon Open Tennis Championship is expected to be on a par with the 96 thousand dollar French Open. Increases of about 17 thousand dollars are expected to be announced in London next week. But Wimbledon's 1970 total will still fall about 72 thousand dollars short of the total prize money offered at the United States Open Championships in September.

WINNIPEG RIVER RAPIDS WERE DANGEROUS

The Winnipeg River is the historic and picturesque water-way joining Lake of the Woods in Ontario and Lake Winnipeg in Manitoba. Used by the Indians for possibly hundreds of years, it was much used again by the early explorers and coureurs-de-bois as a means of getting from eastern to western Canada. Today its mixture of turbulance and tranquility is much enjoyed by recreation seekers for fishing, boating and canoeing. To call it a "river" is somewhat misleading. It is really a series of lakes, some quite large, like Gun, Sand and Telu Lakes, joined by comparatively narrow channels and leading to Boundary Falls on the Ontario-Manitoba border. Rat Portage, the old name for Kenora, was the link joining it to Lake of the Woods.

To digress, we might retell the origin of the name, "Kenora". There were three villages at the north end of Lake of the Woods, Keewatin, Norman (where the present dam islocated, regulating the flow of water between Lake of the Woods and the Winnipeg River) and Rat Portage. The first two letters of each name were used to form the composite word "Kenora" and the name was adopted in 1905.

But to return to the Winnipeg River, we have noticed an item in the Winnipeg Tribune by Mr. Kit Kitney, the outdoor editor, dealing with the naming of the seven rapids, known as the Seven Sisters. His correspondent informs Mr. Kitney that the seven rapids, now drowned by a dam in order to run the Seven Sisters Hydro Plant, were originally called "Les Sept Diables" by the early reach explorers. It would appear that the approaches to the first four rapids were exceedingly dangerous, and that the last three rapids were sometimes run but were very treacherous. It would therefore seem that the French "Seven Devils" was more appropriate than the English "Seven Sisters". The correspondent goes on to report that all the rapids, falls and channels on the Winnipeg River had Indian names.

Farmers To Control Federation

TORONTO — The Ontario Federation of Agriculture moved Tuesday to turn control over to individual member farmers instead of marketing boards and other agricultural organizations.

The proposal by the federation executive, already approved in principle by the marketing boards, would also reduce the role of member county federations, educational farm organizations and co-operatives.

The move would leave the OFA in the hands of farmers who have bought $25 individual memberships, first sold late last year.

The proposal, which would reduce the role of organizations in a five-stage process, must still be approved by the OFA's 80-member organization at a meeting Thursday.

It calls for removal of almost all the education organizations from voting membership as a first step, leaving only a French-speaking group in eastern Ontario to be maintained until a French service is developed.

Eventually, county organizations and individual members are to be integrated to provide one provincial director for up to 250 individuals.

Airport Firemen Seek Increase

OTTAWA — Treasury Board President C. M. Drury said Tuesday that "every effort" is being made to conclude a satisfactory working agreement with 1,500 firemen at federal airports in Canada.

C. Terrence Murphy (L—Sault Ste. Marie) sought assurances that everything possible is being done to reach agreement. He said the firemen have been working for 14 months without a contract and strike action has been threatened.

New scientific information must be developed—Ruggles

The resources development branch of the federal department of fisheries and forestry must develop scientific information suitable to its own purposes, C. P. Ruggles, newly appointed head of the branch, told a regional meeting in Halifax.

Speaking to more than 65 professional biologists, engineers, technicians and hatchery superintendents, he said the resources development branch would have to put large amounts of scientific and technical information on hatchery and fish culture methods into practice during the next few years.

Eventually, he said, the department would have to develop its own information.

He said the aim of the branch was simply to create more fishing.

The management and expansion of the Maritime region's fish and shellfish resources are an important responsibility of the resources development branch, he said.

The department of fisheries' hatchery effectiveness will be determined by how much it costs the department to provide the angler and commercial fisherman with fish, he said.

He emphasized the need to adjust to change and said the branch's effectiveness would be measured, to a large degree, by its ability to deal with new techniques.

To Show Art At Beaver Brae

In days of old, travelling shows brought music, art and drama to towns and cities all over the world this was the only way to find out what was going on in the cultural world.

The Winnipeg Art Gallerys Travelling Exhibitions perform the same function by bringing the best works of art to your school, library or community center.

German Expressionists-- is the fourth of a series of eight art shows which will add to the enjoyment of students in our locality this season.

The exhibition will be on display at Beaver Brae Secondary School from January 15th to February 5th. It is made up of 12 reproductions of paintings by such artists as Heckel, Kandinsky, Marc, and Schmidt-Rottluff, and is one of several on display in this area.

The next Winnipeg Art Gallery display in our community will be February 12th to March 5th.

Minister Pleads Guilty To Charge

Thunder Bay--A Church of Christ Minister, Reverend Eldon Mimms, has pleaded guilty in Thunder Bay Provincial Court to a charge of public mischief.

Mr. Mimms had been sought for nine days as a kidnap victim before Winnipeg Police arrested him Monday night. He was remanded today to January 29th for presentence report.

Mr. Mimms, who is 27, was released after he signed a Surety Bond. In a surprise court appearance, the Minister testified he had contemplated leaving his wife but he concocted a kidnap hoax rather than cause her the embarrassment of a divorce action.

When the Public Mischief charge was read to him yesterday, Mr. Mimms entered no plea. He was remanded to tomorrow but requested through his counsel, Donald A. Martin that he appear today.

Mr. Mimms disappeared from his church January 3rd. Two notes were later received demanding ten thousand dollars for his safe return but attempts to deliver the money as instructed in the notes were unsuccessful.

Mr. Mimms testified today that the Ransom notes were not an attempt to get money but to make his disappearance look like a kidnapping. He said he had hoped he eventually would be given up as slain by his abductors.

He told the court he took a bus to Vancouver the night he left Thunder Bay then took another bus back to Winnipeg, where he telephoned police that he had been thrown from his abductors' automobile.

Winnipeg police took him into custody and he was returned to Thunder Bay.

Where To Use A Snowmobile

There are millions of acres open to snowmobile fun: Summer cottage property; family owned land; golf courses, ski and winter resorts. You won't have to look far.

The most obvious areas are lands you or your friends might own. If they are snow cruising enthusiasts, you can bet they'd enjoy company. If not, you can swap a few free rides in exchange for using their property. You don't need hundreds of acres. Your own "private track" can be laid out to make the best of even small areas.

Summer cottage owners have a ready-made snowmobile playground. You can leave your Snow Cruiser right at the cottage and drive out each weekend. Even if you don't have much land, you can enjoy a full range of activities on nearby lakes.

Many winter resorts and ski areas wecome the snowmobiling family. There will be an endless list of things to do, and there'll probably be some fellow snowmobile enthusiasts among the crowd. Golf courses and country clubs are still another possible area. In fact, many of them are developing complete winter programs centered around the snowmobile.

Many large land owning companies have opened up their property to public recreation. In the summer, they're used by the camper; in the winter the snowmobilists take over. Publicly owned land also offers unlimited opportunities. Check with local and provincial park authorities — you'll be surprised at the number of areas available to you. Although some conservation and forest areas are closed to public recreation, there are still thousands of open acres and many with snowmobile trails already laid out.

Whether it's public or privately owned land, remember the snowmobile slogan: ASK BEFORE YOU ENTER. This is a comparatively new sport, and the first impression created last without asking, it helps you help to create is important every owner. It's everyone's job now and in the years ahead. Even though it's just one owner who litters property or crosses privately them. to ask first, obey the rules, and leave the areas just as they found

Snowmobilers Advised to Observe Canadian and American Regulations When Crossing International Boundary

U. S. Customs and Immigration and Naturalization officials point out that snowmobilers, as well as any other travelers, are subject to laws pertaining to crossing the U. S. — Canada border.

A spokesman for the services said, "Many snowmobilers seem to hold the belief that because they are citizens of the United States, they may operate their machines back and forth across the border at will, especially in remote or sparsely - populated areas, without consideration or compliance with the laws governing international travel. Such a belief is 100 per cent erroneous."

Canada also has regulations and requires that snowmobilers obtain seasonal permits for border crossings.

U. S. officials have expanded their services for the winter season for the benefit of snowmobilers. Stations at Ely and International Falls remain open year-around. New service will be added at Crane Lake and Grand Marais.

Both Canadian and American services are available on the border between International Falls and Fort Frances. In the past a Canadian official has made trips to Ely on certain days to register as many American snowmobile travelers as possible at one time. Efforts are being made to have similar service provided in Duluth.

Service at Crane Lake will be from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. daily except Sundays and holidays when inspectional service is provided only on request, and the officer's services are reimbursable by the snowmobilers or other persons affected.

The station will remain open as long as necessary to accommodate the returning snowmobile traffic.

The station at Ely will be staffed by an officer of the Immigration and Naturalization Service throughout the winter as in past years.

The U. S. Immigration and Naturalization Service requires that all persons entering or reentering the country must apply in person to an immigration officer at a port of entry, when it is open. There is no exception because he crosses the border on a snowmobile.

U. S. customs laws require the person in charge of a snowmobile, or any other vehicle entering the country, to immediately report his arrival to a customs officer at the port of entry nearest the place where the vehicle crosses the boundary line.

Customs and immigration officers are trained and designated to perform each other's duties. A border crosser therefore can comply with the requirements of both services by reporting to the nearest office of either service.

A companion law to the statute requiring a person to report to the nearest customs office provides penalties for failure to comply with the requirements.

The person in charge of any vehicle who fail to report his arrival, or if so reporting proceeds further inland without permission of a customs officer, is subject to a penalty of $100 for each offense.

If any merchandise is brought into the U.S. on a vehicle which is not reported, both the merchandise and the vehicle are subject to seizure and forfeiture and the person in charge of the vehicle will be additionally assessed a penalty equal to the value of the merchandise.

The law also states that if a non - reported vehicle carries any passengers, the person in charge is subject, in addition to any other penalty, to a penalty of $500 for each passenger.

Customs and immigration officers said they always prefer to advise international travelers of their rights, privileges and correct procedures to be followed before the law has been violated.

They add that this can be done only, however, if the traveler makes it a personal responsibility to contact them before travelling near or across the border when uncertain of the correct course of action.

Canada's law requiring seasonal permits to enter that country contains six provisions:

1. The trip must be for less than 48 hours.
2. The permit is for only members of the operator's family, and their names must be listed on the permit.
3. The trip must be confined to a designated area, which will be stated on the permit.
4. No goods may be landed in Canada (or, in other words, no merchandise may be brought into Canada as import).
5. No alcoholic beverages are allowed.
6. The trip must be for pleasure only.

If anyone does not apply for a permit, he must report to the nearest office of Canadian Customs before entering Canada.

WOMAN GETS CHOICE

TORONTO — County Court Judge Walter Martin Monday told Barbara Jean King, 22, of Cleveland to leave Canada within 24 hours or face 10 years and six months in Kingston penitentiary. Judge Martin told her that he would suspend execution of warrants on her convictions of robbery and possession of stolen goods long enough for her to leave Canada.

Wooden tongue depressers, such as used by physicians, are handy to keep around the home. They make convenient applicators for all types of glue, mastic, and adhesive, and are also handy for mixing sticks of puddies when mixing small cans of paint or similar material. From Around the World

As Biafran officials discuss the conditions of their rebellion in Nigeria, their leader, General Ojukwu, is about to reveal his place of exile. An information agency in Geneva says it has received a cable from Ojukwu indicating he'll announce his presence in a European Capital today. The Agency would not say where the message came from.

Earlier a spokesman for a pro-Biafran group in France promised the Ojukwu statement would be released about noon EST in Paris and the capitals of six other countries. The Geneva statement quoted Ojukwu as saying he left his homeland knowing -- as he put it -- "that while I live, Biafra lives."

A high-placed commonwealth source in London says that as far as he knows, Britain's Harold Wilson is not pressing for a summit meeting of commonwealth leaders this summer. The source adds that a meeting in the winter of 1971 is more likely. He also says that commonwealth leaders have exchanged views on where to get together but that no consensus has emerged.

There have been reports Wilson is pressing for a summit this summer in New Delhi or Singapore, with the Agenda restricted to Britain's bid to join the European Common Market. The Commonwealth source however, sees a wide-open agenda, including unsuccessful efforts to topple the white minority government in Rhodesia.

Women - Animals Said In Race On Pill Safety

WASHINGTON — A noted birth control specialist says women are in a grim race with laboratory animals to determine the safety of birth control pills.

Doctor Roy Hertz says: "The ultimate outcome of this race between dogs, monkeys and women can be anticipated by informed observers only with great apprehension and concern."

Hertz is chairman of the Cancer Task Force of a U-S food and drug administration advisory panel.

He is testifying today before a U-S Senate Subcommittee looking into the hazards of birth control pills.

He said it may take years to confirm suspected links between the pill and cancer of the breast and uterus. But he said it would be a "rare circumstance indeed" that would cause him to prescribe most current pills.

Hertz said much early testing of the pill had been misinterpreted.

He blamed fear of the population explosion and drug industry pressure for creating a worldwide enthusiasm that hampers — in his word — "truly comprehensive and objective evaluation of its merits and demerits."

Although Hertz made only passing reference to the drug industry, another witness blamed the drug makers for dispensing "untruthful and dangerous advice."

Doctor Edmund Kassouf, identified by a subcommittee spokesman as one of the first American practitioners to suspect serious side-effects from the pill, said pamphlets given consumers failed to take note of studies definitely linking birth control pills to fatal blood clotting and other disorders.

Kassouf also accused the American Medical Association of having what he called a "puzzling" record on birth control pills, refusing to publish or take note of some critical reports.

Says Medicare "Tory Care"

THUNDER BAY — Ontario New Democratic Party Leader Donald MacDonald said yesterday that if the NDP forms the next government in Ontario, it will institute health coverage that includes medical care, hospital care and drug care.

Mr. MacDonald told a public meeting at Thunder Bay that Ontario's present medicare scheme, instituted last year by the Progressive Conservative Government, has, in his words "been prostituted into Tory care."

He criticized the Ontario plan for its inclusion of private carriers, and said private companies have administrative costs of from eight to nine per cent, compared with five per cent for public companies.

He said Ontario's premiums are the highest in Canada because the Provincial Government has not used Federal contributions to lower the rates.

In his words "The final scandal" of the plan, is that it covers only 90 per cent of the Ontario Medical Association fee schedule.

Lands & Forests Explain Process Of Logging

BY: J.R. FOWELL

We often tend to think of logging only in the sense of removal of mature and over-mature timber, forgetting that it can be a very valuable aid in the formation, improvement and protection of growing timber stands.

Cutting operations are usually of two main types-Regeneration Cuttings, and Intermediate Cuttings. In Regeneration cuttings, mature trees are removed in such a way as to favor regeneration to the desired species- such cuttings are often termed harvest cuttings, but this ignores their regeneration - aspects).

Regeneration cuttings fall into four main categories in Ontario. The first three listed below, used mainly with even aged stands, the fourth with unevenaged stands.

1. CLEAR CUTS: all merchantable trees are removed in one cutting and regeneration is obtained artificially or by natural seeding from adjacent stands or from cones left on the ground or in the slash following cutting. Jackpine is generally clearcut with cones on the residual slash providing the seed supply for regeneration.

2. SEED TREE CUTS:-All mature timber is removed in one cutting except for a small number of trees left singly or in small groups for the purpose of producing the seed to restock the area naturally. Seed-tree cuts are often used with red pine and white pine.

3. Shelterwood Cuts: This is similar to a seed-tree cut except that the timber is removed in a series of cuts, rather than one, thus allowing regeneration to become established under the partial shelter of the seed trees. Shelterwood cuts are suitable for use with species such as red pine and white pine.

4. Selection Cuts: Mature trees are removed individually or in small groups at relatively short intervals, repeated indefinitely, thus producing continuous establishment of regeneration and - maintaining an uneven-aged stand. Selection cuts are used particularly with hardwoods such as maple cherry or yellow birch in Ontario. Intermediate cuttings are cuttings carried out from the time the stand is regenerated until it is mature. Various categories of intermediate cutting are:

1. Thinnings: Cuttings made in immature stands to stimulate the growth of the trees that remain and to increase the total yield of useful material from the stand.

2. Pruning: the removal of the lower branches from stems to increase the quality and value of the final crop.

3. Release Cuttings; These free desirable trees from the competition of undesirable trees that threaten to suppress them.

4. Improvement cuttings:-Trees of undesirable species, form or condition are removed from the main canopy.

5. Salvage Cuttings: Removal of dead or dying timber while it is still merchantable.

6. Sanitation Cuttings: Removal of insect or diseased infested trees in order to prevent the spread of these pests to other trees.

Today's Children

BY: R[illegible] Allen

Just to look at Alec's picture you can tell he is a bouncy, bubbly little boy, always happy and ready to be friends with everyone. Of Negro origin, Alec is ten months old, a healthy, husky baby with dark brown eyes fringed with long thick lashes, curly black hair and light coffee-colored skin.

This little boy has an inner happiness which is most contagious. To see him is to smile, even when he's up to some mischief like removing a scarf from a lady's head when she's out shopping, as he did the other day.

This little boy needs a warm, outgoing family who can enjoy his easy-going ways and share his laughter.

To inquire about adopting Alec please write to Today's Child, Department of Social and Family Services, Parliament buildings, Toronto, 182.

Fishery biologist named chief of resource branch

C. P. RUGGLES

A fishery biologist in the Maritimes has been appointed Chief, Resource Development Branch in the Maritime region for the federal department of Fisheries and Forestry.

He is 40-year-old C. P. Ruggles whose appointment was announced by R. N. Gordon, regional director of the department.

Mr. Ruggles succeeds John P. Parkinson who is now in Ottawa as senior engineer with the Resource Development Service.

A native of Kenora, Ontario, Mr. Ruggles completed his high school education in that town and first became interested in fisheries while serving as a fishing and hunting guide during summer vacations in the area.

In 1959 Mr. Ruggles joined the federal department of Fisheries in Vancouver and for several years engaged in various studies of Pacific salmon, especially as they related to hydroelectric development in British Columbia. Five years later he was named chief biologist for the Resource Development Branch in the Maritimes and took up residence in the Halifax area.

During his tenure as chief biologist, the new branch chief became involved in organizing several fisheries development and management programs in all three Maritime provinces. He has played a leading role in the fishery service's anti-pollution work which is aimed at safeguarding the freshwater and marine environment for optimum fish production.

As Chief of the Resource Development Branch, Mr. Ruggles will be responsible for developing his Branch's role in protecting the environment for fish against pollution and other man-made threats; providing a biological rationale for fishery management and for implementing various measures to expand and increase stocks of the fish and shellfish in the region.

Mr. Ruggles is a member of the American Fisheries Society; the International Society of Limnologists—and the American Institute of Fishery Research Biologists.

Editor's note:- C.P. Ruggles is a former well-known resident of Kenora. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. T.D. Ruggles, Second Street South, Kenora, Ontario.

Discrimination In Voting Said Detrimental

Toronto— A Provincial Legislature committee has been told in Toronto than an immigrant's enthusiasm for the principles of equal rights is often killed by discrimination in voting.

Fernand Costa, a Toronto Engineer who speaks for Ontario's 100 thousand - Portuguese, made the remark yesterday to the Legislature's election law committee.

Current regulations stipulate that landed immigrants from the British Commonwealth can vote in Provincial and Federal election after one year's residence in Canada.

But other immigrants must wait five years until they can vote.

The committee chairman, E.A. Dunlop, said that although five years might be too long to wait, one year would be too short.

Manuel Durante, an accountant who lived in Canada 3 and one half years, told the committee he wanted to vote so he could support politicians who promise to stop selling Canadian businesses to U.S. interests.

The conservative member for Kingston and the Islands, Syl Apps, and William Hodgson, Conservative member for North York yesterday objected to a list of recommendations prepared by the committee's counsel.

They said the proposals would make it easier for persons to publicly embarrass a political candidate.

One proposal would permit a chief election officer or a private citizen to start court proceedings in cases of suspected corruption.

WELFARE PAYMENTS IN 1969 REACHED HIGH

The Ontario Minister of Social and Family services says regulations concerning welfare payments will be reviewed to ensure that there are no more errors in law.

The Provincial Government admitted today that it should not have cut off welfare payments to a deserted wife with four children because she had an affair with a boarder.

The unidentified woman had been receiving 220 dollars a month in welfare when she was told last May that the allowance would be discontinued.

The department told here that from information on file it appeared she was not living as a single person.

The woman then evicted the boarder to have her payments reinstated. She complained to the civil liberties Association.

Alan Borovoy, the Association's General Counsel, said Tuesday the Department offered a settlement after the matter was taken up with the Provincial Review Board and the Ontario Court of Appeal. During an interview today, Mr. Borovoy said the Department now has declared for the first time that in such a situation the intimacies of deserted wives on welfare are not the concern of the government.

Kills Two

SAN FRANCISCO (Reuters) — Squads of police with tracker dogs today hunted a berserk gunman who killed two persons and wounded three others Tuesday night, racing from home to home through rainswept streets to seek out victims.

The shooting spree left an elderly man and a 30-year-old mother dead in homes a quarter of a mile apart, police said.

The gunman first burst into the home of Cesario Cinflo, 50, and his wife Domenica, 50, in the working-class Ingleside district of San Francisco.

Cinflo, was killed, and his wife seriously wounded by the gunfire. She ran into the street screaming.

The gunman then tried to commandeer a car but seemingly changed his mind and shot the occupant in the chest, police said.

TALKS WITH TRANSAIR MAY CHANGE DECISION

Mayor Ernie Carter of Kenora has received a communication from Honorable J.W. Pickersgill chairman of the Canadian Transport Commission following receipt of a joint appeal from the Kenora Council, the Chamber of Commerce and the Industrial Board asking intervention into suggested plans by Transair to cut back air services for Kenora, Dryden and other Northwestern points.

Mr. Pickersgill said the Transport Commission is presently engaged in discussions with Transair which, he said, he hoped would make possible the continuance of the air service between Winnipeg, Kenora, Dryden and Thunder Bay.
